“ My deepest sympathies and love go out to the family and friends of Jimmy Stanfield. He was definitely a force to be reckoned with. He was kind, gentle, generous and forgiving. At the end of his life is when I spent the most time with him. We had some very deep conversations. He was intelligent, witty and always had something funny to say. Jimmy was different and his sense of humor was a little spicy, you could say but, it was deep there always seemed he meant to challenge you to find a second meaning a secret deeper message meant just for you. As I would contemplate what it was he was really saying to me I could see the little twinkle in his eyes and see the real joy it brought him and the love he had for life and the people he had around him. I'm glad he's not suffering anymore. I hope that our maker is who I think they are merciful forgiving loving and accepting and that Jimmy is at peace amongst the things that he loved. You will be missed Jimmy and I will never forget you! Your friend, Laurell Alexander.
